RESUME OF JEFFREY BRUCE KNORR

Jeffrey Knorr was born in Lincoln Park, New Jersey in 1940. He attended the Pennsylvania State University where he majored in electrical engineering. He received the degrees Bachelor of Science in 1963 and Master of Science in 1964.

In 1963 he received a commission in the United States Naval Reserve. He was assigned as an Instructor in Electrical Engineering at the Naval Postgraduate School from 1964-67. He subsequently was a member of Naval Reserve Surface Division 3-24(S), Ithaca, New York, and Naval Reserve Research Company 12-8, Monterey, CA.

He began graduate study at Cornell University in 1967 and received the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in June 1970. His thesis, Electromagnetic Applications of Group Theory, was written under the direction of Professor Paul. R. McIsaac.

He has been associated with the Missile and Space Vehicle Department of the General Electric Company, C-Cor Electronics, the Naval Missile Center, and the ECM Division of Sanders Associates, Inc.

In September 1970 he joined the faculty of the Naval Postgraduate School and is presently an Associate Professor in the Department of Electrical Engineering. Prof. Knorr is also a member of the Electronic Warfare Academic Group. His current research interests are in the area of microwave circuits, devices and systems. His special interests include electronic warfare systems, particularly signal intelligence, and microwave/millimeter wave integrated circuits.

He is a member of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineers (Microwave Theory and Techniques Society), Sigma Xi, the Research Society of North America and the Association of Old Crows.
